Some child car seats have harnesses to act as restraints. For a harness to work well, it needs to fit snugly across your child's body – you should be able to fit just two fingers between the harness and your child's body.

~~How To Fit A Car Seat: 10 Essential Checks – Which?~~

A properly-fitted 5-point harness gives the best possible protection for your child. A 5-point harness has straps that go over both shoulders and both hips and then buckles at the crotch. The car seat label will tell you the weight and height range of the harness. Check regularly to make sure your child hasn't outgrown it. A seat belt is also a type of harness and is used on older children in booster seats.

Start your child in a rear-facing car seat in the back seat. Rear-face until at least age 2 and until they reach the upper weight and height limits of the seat (even up to age 4). If your child outgrows their car seat before age 2, change to a seat with higher rear-facing weight and height limits. Keep rear-facing as long as possible.

Baby-These are rearward facing car seats that will usually go in the back of the car to get them started. Toddler-These are designed for kids who have outgrown the baby seats, but aren't quite big enough for a child car seat or booster seat. Child-These are for when your little one needs a 'boost' so they can safely use an adult seatbelt.

~~Snug Kids®~~ Safety Fit Guide.

Parents know that finding the right child seat is an important part of protecting our children on the road. And Nissan has always recognized that the safety of all of our passengers is at the core of everything we do. That is why Nissan introduced Snug Kids®, an industry-first program geared specifically toward safety for children in child restraint systems (CRS), commonly referred to as "child safety seats".
